Dear Nemesio;

In reply to your letter of August 16, may I answer as follows:

1. In regard to your advertisement in The Art Gallery Magazine, we have no control of their selection or placement of page or location on page, whatsoever. They have heretofore been above criticism.
2. I will be happy to provide Thomas Messer with whatever painting he chooses, as you suggest.
3. As mentioned in my letter, I had written Mr. Carroll about the confusion I felt over The Brooklyn Museum painting suddenly appearing with another one at The Center for Inter-American Relations. He has not answered as yet, but he does come to New York frequently from Paris and I would expect that he will contact the gallery in this regard.
4. In regard to the Neuberger Museum piece, they had written to say the painting was in their temporary collection and would be seriously considered for their permanent collection by their committee, at which time they would notify us of their decision. We have heard nothing up to now.
5. In regard to the balance of $ 461 due the gallery from you, I must remind you of your promise at a pre-show meeting you made to pay monies heretofore expended by the gallery to be cleared up upon the shows conclusion. It would not be proper or fair for you to postpone this payment and I must insist that you forward an American Express or similar money order that is immediately collectable by return mail.
6. We have continued to expose your paintings to potential buyers and our enthusiasm for them still prevails.

7. Both Harriet, Amie, and I wish you, Patricia and your family God's Speed and Good Fortune in your move to London.

We will continue to push, push, push the Fine Art of NEMESIO ANTUNEZ in This New York Art Scene.

With Emotion, Affection and Good Will,
